CHILD WELFARE BILL REJECTED IN LEGISLATURE

New Children's Care Code Is Voted Down by Vote of Lower House.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 7—The house of representatives, by a 76 to 75 vote, today killed a voluminous bill presented by the state children's welfare commission, which would have given it additional authority over local welfare activities.

Opponents of the measure, explained as revising the child welfare code, contended it would make the state welfare department a virtual czar over the public welfare of children in cities and counties.

The vote, on a roll call taken late last night, was 48 yes to 75 no. The house also rejected a proposed constitutional amendment which a special session of the legislature could be convened upon petition of three-fifths of the membership. The amendment received 76 favorable votes and 47 in the negative, whereas 82 were needed to adopt it.

Changes Tax Date

The house approved and sent to the senate a measure changing from Sept. 11 to June 20 the date of payment of real estate taxes for the last half of the year. The measure also abolishes provisions for installment payments of current real estate taxes.

Legislation reducing the maximum legal interest rate on small loans for the first time since 1913 received only house concurrence in a senate amendment today before going to the governor for his signature.

The measure, approved unanimously by the senate yesterday, fixes a maximum of 3 per cent a month on the first $150, 2 per cent on the next $150, and 8 per cent a year on balance above $300. The present rate on the first $300 is 3 per cent a month.

The bill also requires new applicants for a lender's license to show assets of $10,000. All lenders would post $2,000 bond.

The Bricker administration submitted to the senate a bill revising the procedure of evaluating utilities properties for rate-making purposes.

The state utilities commission would be required to consider the original property cost, the production cost new, the depreciation and any other essential elements.

The bill is intended to eliminate much of the delay and expense involved in the present method of determining values according to the reproduction cost new.

The senate completed enactment of a bill permitting importation of wine in tank car shipments in contrast to the present limit of 60-gallon containers.

The senate's passage of a bill creating a board of examiners to license and regulate watchmen brought protests from Senator Albert L. Daniels (R-Richland).

"This is more regimentation and bureaucracy is designed to build up the bureaucracy which we have suffered so much in Washington," he said.

The senate approved and sent to the house another measure to make possible the refunding or retirement of state bridge revenue bonds. Senator John Stephenson (R-Columbiana) said gasoline taxes and competition from a free bridge had caused a reduction of 50 per cent in the state bridge between East Liverpool and Wellsville.

The senate also passed to the house another bill increasing from 50 cents to $1 per case the rate for legal advertising in newspapers of less than 125,000 circulation.

More Yarn Received For Servicemen's Garments

A new consignment of yarn and quota for garments for Bundles for America have been received here, it was announced today by Miss Maud Gorham, chairman. The quota includes 30 pairs of gray sox, six V-neck sleeveless sweaters, eight beanies, four Balaclava helmets, two chest protectors and two scarves. The turtle-neck sweaters and square neck sleeveless sweaters are for the Navy, the sox for the Merchant Marine and the remainder of the articles are for the Army.

It is important that the work be done immediately as the climate in which some of the men are fighting is cold and uncomfortable, Miss Gorham points out. Persons desiring to help with the knitting may get the yarn by calling at the home of Miss Gorham at 429 South Main street.

HIT AND RUN NAZIS RAID ENGLISH TOWNS

Theater and Newspaper Office Wrecked.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, April 7—German hit-and-run fighter-bombers attacked two towns on the British southeast coast shortly after dawn today, causing some casualties and damaging a number of business establishments.

Six planes participated in the raid on one town, where a motion picture theater and a newspaper office were among the buildings wrecked. One of the planes was reported shot down.

Two enemy raiders participated in the other attack, which was said to have caused little damage and no casualties.

The assaults followed a raid-free night in Britain.

The allied aerial offensive against the continent yesterday, tapering off after 72 hours of the most furious onslaughts of the war, was limited to attacks by RAF fighters and fighter-bombers on railway, airdromes and power stations in France and Belgium.

The air ministry announced reconnaissance photographs taken after the mighty RAF raid on Berlin March 1 showed that 30 large factories, large blocks of centrally located business offices, and railway repair shops of the Tempelhof freight yards were destroyed or badly damaged.

The German-controlled Paris radio quoted high Nazi military authorities as saying the German air force would "avenge itself on the British, and when this happens it will be more terrible than ever before."

Zanesville Lawyer Disbarred 6 Months

By The Associated Press

ZANESVILLE, O., April 7—Charles C. Lemert, former judge of the Fifth district court of appeals, today was disbarred for six months.

Common Pleas Judge Fred H. Wolfe of Fulton county issued the disbarment order after convicting Lemert yesterday of "misconduct in office and unprofessional conduct" in administering the estate of Anna E. Denison.

A committee of the Muskingum Bar association filed the charges. Lemert termed the charges a 'political trick." He was defeated for reelection last fall by Common Pleas Judge Robert Putnam of Millersburg.

BRITISH PULL BACK IN BURMA

Wavell's Army Withdraws To Avoid Being Outflanked by Japanese.

By The Associated Press

A new British setback on the Burma front was disclosed today as Field Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell's legions fell back on the Mayu peninsula, along the Bay of Bengal, to counter a threat by out-flanking Japanese troops from the north.

British forces thrusting down the peninsula from India had failed in four attempts to crack the powerful Japanese defenses guarding the big coastal base at Akyab.

"Infiltrating across the Mayu river south of Kwazon, the enemy succeeded over the week-end in mounting a direct threat to our communications in the narrow strip between the hills and the sea north of Donbaik," a British communique said.

"To meet this outflanking movement, necessary readjustments have been made in our positions on the Mayu peninsula."

The extent of the withdrawal was not revealed, but dispatches from the front last week said Gen. Wavell was preparing to pull in his vanguards and dig in at more favorable positions to await the arrival of the monsoon rains.

The British command said other British forces were holding unchanged positions in the hills north of the Mayu peninsula, where "severe casualties" were inflicted on the Japanese in fighting still in progress.

In the southwest Pacific, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced allied fliers bombed Japanese-occupied villages in the Arore islands, the enemy's closest foothold to Australia, and set big fires in the Japanese base at Salamaua, New Guinea.

United Nations airmen also raked the enemy at Alitii, in the Tanimbar islands, and at Gasmata, New Britain.

The newspaper was unable to give the reason for his reported arrest.

BUFFER STATES POSE NEW WOE

Berle's Statement Stirs Controversy in Capital; Army Bans Public Office.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 7—Amid indications that Uncle Sam has his $2,000,000,000 gold ante ready to plank down on the post-war currency stabilization table, the capital today was confronted by a ticklish new world problem—the future of buffer states.

On the domestic scene, the suddenly routed farm bloc fought a rear guard action to save the Bankhead bill from annihilation, a new Army regulation barring most service men from public office caused a sizeable stir and congress faced a three-front war agency financing fight and more manpower problems.

As Treasury Secretary Morgenthau unfolded details of the post-war monetary program submitted to 37 nations, it was indicated this country's 40 per cent contribution to the planned $5,000,000,000 stabilization fund could come from the $2,000,000,000 domestic stabilization funds which the treasury has been operating for nine years.

Text of the treasury program also disclosed the United States would hold veto power on the controlling board.

Berle Starts Controversy

An even bigger postwar world worry seemed to be posed in the dual perturbation aroused by the statement last Sunday of Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle Jr.: "Today the idea of a buffer state is as dead as a dodo."

On one side, his view was criticized as too narrow to cover all of Russia's postwar security requirements, and the Daily Worker editorially accused him of advocating the use of American troops to erect "hostile, fascist states led by men like Darlan on the borders of the Soviet Union."

On the other hand, worried diplomats of some of the smaller European states promptly asked what then would become of them.

Meanwhile, farm bloc leaders had their worries on Capitol Hill. Their drive to override the President's veto of the Bankhead bill to exclude benefit payments in setting farm price ceilings apparently stopped cold by a sudden upsurge of administration strength rallying around Economic Director James F. Byrnes, they shifted swiftly to defense tactics—and sought to delay senate action for a more opportune time.

The question was whether their strength-saving strategy—involving sending the bill back to the agriculture committee—could stop the showdown march being engineered from behind the scenes by Byrnes, whom they termed "the master strategist."

New Army Regulation

Splitting interest with the Bankhead battle was the furor aroused in legislative and po-

BILL TO REGULATE UNIONS OPPOSED

Labor Leaders Record Objections with Committee.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 7—The house judiciary committee was told last night that, under a bill to regulate labor unions, an employer could discharge every labor leader in his employ.

The statement came from Thomas Downs, attorney for the Ohio CIO, as the committee conducted its second hearing on the French bill.

Testimony that the proposed legislation was designed to destroy labor unions also came from Phil Hannah, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Federation of Labor, and Ted F. Silvey, who holds a similar office in the Ohio CIO.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Earl M. French, Republican of Delaware, would establish a state employment relations board with authority to register unions and union officials and supervise their elections and other activities. The bill also would require a majority vote of a plant's employes to call a strike, require 20 days' notice of intent to strike and prohibit sitdowns and slowdowns, sympathy strikes and mass picketing.

Hannah expressed fear enactment of the measure would "inevitably disturb and disrupt the high morale of thousands of organized workers of this state."

Commenting on French's statements that he had been threatened since he introduced the bill, Hannah said he had appealed unsuccessfully to French to give him the names of any persons who threatened him.

Silvey told the committee:

"This bill is calculated to destroy labor unions, to put them out of business completely. I doubt whether the proponents know that."

Answering French's statement that the proposal was designed to cure "racketing and disdonesty" in labor organization, Silvey declared it "would create the most vicious system of rackeering that could be devised."

The judiciary committee will conduct another hearing on the bill next Tuesday evening.

Burke, president of the Southern Coal Producers association.

REDS REPORT SHARP BATTLE

Donets River and Kuban Delta Areas See Severe Fighting.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, April 7 — Sharp fighting along the Donets river and in the Kuban delta, in the Caucasus, was reported by the Russians today as the long Soviet-German battlefront experienced better weather.

In the Kuban delta, where the Red army had been said unofficially to be fighting in the suburbs of Novorossisk, the Black sea port, dispatches said the Russians kept up their offensive and drove doggedly into the Germans against strong resistance.

The fighting there extended over acres of glue-like mud and swollen streams, but the Russians said their troops plunged on nevertheless, falling into the Nazi flanks in some areas and in others surrounding the foe.

There was virtually no news of Novorossisk, however, the last big objective the Germans hold in the northern Caucasus area. The Nazis are striving with all their power to hold this naval base, one of the best ports along the Black sea.

Sharper fighting flared on the Donets river from south of Izyum on north past Chuguev. The Germans' newest attacks south of Izyum against a Soviet bridgehead were announced to have cost them more than 500 dead and one of their front lines.

In fresh attacks in the Volkov sector, south of Leningrad, the Germans lost heavily and gained nothing, the Russians reported.

Dispatches from Leningrad related that brighter weather had brought mass German air raids on the city. Anti-aircraft fire was said to have brought down 13 attacking planes in one day.

Germans Claim Subs Sink 14 Allied Ships

By The Associated Press

The Germans claimed today that their submarines in the Atlantic and Mediterranean had sunk 14 fully-loaded allied merchant ships totaling 102,000 tons, and also had sent a destroyer to the bottom.

The claim was made in a special communique by DNB, broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by The Associated Press.

In the course of heavy attacks on allied supply lines, five other ships were torpedoed, but their sinking could not be observed due to strong defense measures, the German announcement said.

The German claims were unconfirmed by allied sources.

Ohio Relief Cost Drops for First Three Months

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 7—Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood estimated today Ohio's poor relief bill for the first three months of 1943 would approximate $2,064,399, a drop of $1,700,000 under the comparable 1942 quarter and $3,500,000 under the first quarter of 1941.

March relief expenditures will total about $670,000 on the basis of a preliminary survey, Sherwood said, compared with $670,224 for February, one of the smallest decreases in several months.

Total relief cases shrank from 21,277 cases in February to about 20,000 last month.

CAPTURE 5,000 PRISONERS IN FIERCE BATTLE

Patton's Troops Mop Up German Forces in Drive Toward Coast.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, April 7—The British Eighth Army has broken through the axis hill and Wadi defenses north of Gabes, and American troops have mopped up Germans on the Djebel Mareila, north of Maknassy, and advanced east of El Guetar in a coordinated squeeze of Marshal Erwin Rommel, latest reports from the front said today.

Seizing two high hills which dominated the new defenses along the Wadi El Akarit, 20 miles north of Gabes, the British held these strong points through violent German counterattacks after a breakthrough behind a heavy artillery barrage and an allied headquarters communique said they captured 5,000 prisoners, mostly Italians.

(Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the house of commons in London that British armor had reached open country yesterday after taking all the key positions in the Wadi El Akarit line, and that Rommel was retreating northward with Montgomery in "hot pursuit."

(Five thousand axis prisoners had been captured, he said, after an artillery preparation from 500 guns, a concentration about equal to that which opened the El Alamein battle in Egypt last October.)

Heavy U. S. Attack

The Americans, attacking 40 miles to the west in an effort to link hands with Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's warriors and also to threaten Rommel's rear, launched heavy new attacks.

They tried desperately to dislodge entrenched German forces from their formidable artillery positions and strong lines of machinegun nests planted in the rocks of Djebel Kheroun nine miles east of El Guetar.

Latest reports said they had advanced after previous failures.

About 40 miles to the north, the Americans attacked in a new sector, nine miles north of Maknassy, and first were reported to have driven to the mouth of Maizila pass and then to have mopped up the Germans remaining on the dominant heights.

(At last reports, the Americans in that sector were only 28 miles from Rommel's coastal road.)

The allied air war kept pace with the furious ground action, as British and American planes unleashed another of their powerful daily offensives, sinking at least 17 ships, battering the enemy's forward positions, scorching airfields and hammering at the ports of Tunis, Trapani, Hagusa and Messina on both sides of the Sicilian straits.

Battle Lasts Two Hours

The Wadi El Akarit line collapsed within two hours after Montgomery's Eighth Army launched its first assault at 4:30 a. m. yesterday.

The infantry charge was protected by a thundering bombardment of hundreds of guns which opened at 4 o'clock in one of the heaviest blows ever dealt by allied artillery in the African war.

The enemy held two hills, the Djebel Tebaga Fatnassa and Djebel El Roumana, about two miles apart and inland from the coastal highway. These were the only high ground in the battle area and the British riflemen attacked them under a blazing counterfire.

By 6 a. m. both hills were in British hands. Half an hour later the enemy tried to retake them but met a bloody repulse. By 6:30 a. m. all organized opposition in the area had ceased.

There was no official information on how far the British had progressed after that, but the desert is flat for 80 miles to the north and afforded little opportunity for Rommel to stop and give battle.

About 30 miles to the north his route of retreat lay between the little salt marsh, Chott Sebkret and the sea.

Montgomery was said to have commented: "My troops fought splendidly. The fighting was as tough as anything we have encountered since El Alamein."

Allied patrols were active everywhere along the front from the British First Army's sector in the north to the central sectors of Ousseltia and Fondouk.

U. S. Action Continues

"Fighting continues in the El Guetar sector" where Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr.'s second American army corps is pressing Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces in a narrow box, between the mountains and the sea, a communique said.

The furious allied air attack continued apace with the intense land activities. Mitchell medium

American Infantry Battalion Cited for Oran Action

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, April 7—For gallantry at Oran in the face of terrific odds, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower issued a citation yesterday—the first given to an American unit in the North African theater—to the Third battalion of the Sixth armored infantry regiment of the First armored division.

The citation, which permits the four companies in the honored battalion to carry blue streamers on their company standards, praised their "outstanding performance of duty in action Nov. 8, 1942."

"Charged with the seizure of port installations at Oran, the battalion entered the harbor aboard two cutters in the face of powerful shore batteries and guns of ships at anchor," the citation said.

"Upon reaching the harbor proper, the cutters promptly came under terrific artillery and small arms fire accurately laid through the help of searchlights. Using only available infantry weapons and small caliber guns mounted on boats, the battalion continued toward its objective until both cutters were sunk with severe loss of personnel.

"Despite odds, the surviving members of the battalion swam ashore, supporting the wounded, and fought their way through machine gun fire in a desperate attempt to carry out their mission. In the face of great odds and with no expectancy of aid, the action of the battalion was marked by gallantry, fearlessness and devotion to duty."

Flying Wing Plane of Future

By JOHN FERRIS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK, April 7 — Giant [illegible] airplanes, shuttling [illegible] capitals in hours, [illegible] are needed now, were [illegible]day by Glenn D. An[illegible] engineer and edi[illegible] here," the interna[illegible] yearbook.

"The problem in making [illegible] service a post-war [illegible] Angle sees it, is the development of the necessary motive power for the big planes.

Along with other aviation authorities, Angle foresees aircraft carrying 150 to 250 passengers, as well as mail, perishable freight, securities, letters of credit and documents for which rush service is necessary.

His projected time-table from New York would put London 10 hours away; Moscow, 14; Cairo, 16, and Rio De Janeiro only 15, while San Francisco would be only 20 hours from Chungking and Sydney; 21 from Manila and 24 from Calcutta.

Groundwork Laid

The Army air transport and the commercial lines already have laid the groundwork for global flying on a large scale. Airports have sprung up in jungles, forests, plains, in Arctic regions and the tropics, and the international air is filled with talk of future control of flying.

"There is no reason why U. S. engineers can't eventually design a 5,000 horsepower aeroplane engine," Angle said.

"However, I think the 5,000 horsepower engine will not come in one jump. I expect we will raise the horsepower gradually so as to allow for the necessary research, and operating experience.

"From the structural, economical and manufacturing standpoints, it is better to have fewer, larger engines, than many smaller types. Aerodynamically, it is more advantageous to install four large engines than six of considerably lower horsepower; and the aircraft manufacturers are already thinking about where to get them. The problem is: what type should they be?"

Angle, who received his engineering education at the University of Michigan, has written several books and numerous technical articles.

"We've already reached the probable limit on the two-row or double bank type of engine. The major problem is cooling when you develop over 100 horsepower a cylinder.

30-Cylinder Engines

"The answer apparently is in a multiple cylinder engine, liquid cooled, with perhaps 30 instead of 16 cylinders. These would be smaller cylinders and perfectly disposed so that cooling would be satisfactory."

Angle isn't sure the war is helping aviation as much as people sometimes think, so far as plane development goes.

"The first automobiles, you'll remember, were built with the old buggy whipsocket. Even the manufacturers thought of them as horseless buggies. The engine was put in the front after a few years and has stayed there. The day probably will come when the motor will be in back, but it's hard to break people into new ideas sometimes.

"The airplane, too, has developed with its engine in front and with the fuselage used for passengers and freight. There seems to be no reason why most of the fuselage can't be eliminated and something along the lines of a flying wing developed.

"War-time operations have now helped the improvement of engines and navigation and the government ought to be able to pay for future developments if the private companies are a little hesitant."

'Good Luck' Chain Letters Increase Postal Problem

"Good Luck" chain letters are flooding the mails and taking up space which should be used for hastening letters to the men in the armed forces, a check of the letters in the "dead letter" mail at the Marion postoffice discloses.

The "good luck" chain is broken dozens of times, postoffice officials say, because many of the letters bear addresses of persons who have moved out of the city or to other streets in the city, and, lacking return addresses, are placed in the dead letter mail.

Some of the letters are sent to mothers with boys and girls in the service—as if they did not have enough to worry about.

One Marion county mother, with three sons and a daughter in service, and with courage enough to "break the chain" comments "I think we have enough more worthwhile things to do now, to say nothing of crowding the mails. How much better to write encouraging letters to ours in service than such as this."

UNION ELECTION HELD FOR PLANT PATROL

Ordnance Plant Group Votes; CIO Union Certified.

The United Rubber Workers of America Local 241, a CIO group, has been certified in a vote conducted by the National Labor Relation Board as the exclusive bargaining agent for the patrolmen employed at the Scioto Ordnance Plant.

The election was conducted Monday and Tuesday at the plant by Robert E. Shuff, NLRB representative from the Cleveland office.

John D. House, field representative for the URWA, said the union requested the election when the United States Rubber Co., operators of the plant, failed to recognize the union as bargaining agent for the patrol.

Under labor legislation, an employer is not required to deal with a group unless it represents a majority of the affected workers. The Wagner act requires an election to decide whether the union represents a majority.

The union received its charter from the international union on March 1. Mr. House said the patrol is the first group at the plant to reach 100 per cent organization although several other groups are nearing that mark.

The plant patrol unit includes the police matrons, who are also affiliated with the URWA.

A hearing will be held April 12, possibly in Marion, on pending petitions for certification of the union as bargaining agent for maintenance and production workers, Mr. House said.

Assisting Mr. Shuff in conducting the election were John C. Lind, James O. Eddy, Paul F. Beveridge and William D. Cochran, for the union; and John Artopoeus, M. N. Wolfe and J. C. Slane of the U. S. Rubber Co. Two men from each group were on duty as "watchers" during the election periods.

IN LOVING MEMORY

★Of Bernard Thomas O'Brien who passed away April 7, 1942.

The face we loved is now laid low,
His loving voice is still.
The hand so often clasped in mine,

When we are all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
When other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green
And never fade away.

Spring Offensive in the West

DAYLIGHT raiding of Fortress Europe bombers proves beyond a doubt more than all the experimental period in the European bombing business for America was over. Pure bombing of targets as important as Paris can help for greenhorns.

According to official figures, the bombers totaled 133. Four were left in France, a night's loss many would be expected for daylight raiding, even with heavy protection from fighter planes. This does not mean, of course, that responsible authorities are planning a smashing success, because it is increasingly clear the success of daylight raiding cannot be estimated by the ratio of outright loss of planes. Besides the extent of damage done to targets, the damage done to planes that limp back to their bases in England must be considered.

The spring offensive in the west is well under way. The third dimensional second front created over Nazi-held Europe is active by day and night. No matter what lies the German propaganda ministry may tell, the presence of Allied bombers over Europe cannot be hidden. It will have its effect on the outcome of the war, but on the eve of the all-out Allied air offensive few observers will be found to predict it can break Germany's will to conquer.

Confusion Was the Result

OPA steps to rescue consumers from catch-as-catch-can meat pricing will be popular. Specific prices on retail sales of beef, veal, lamb and mutton will make it possible for customers to know what to expect.

The existing system, which permitted prices corresponding to those in force on March 1942, could not be expected to work. It left too much to individual honesty, imagination, ingenuity, resourcefulness and the other human qualities brought into play when the battle for survival grows serious.

The revised system should work better. It permits a differential between prices in small stores and prices in large stores and chain enterprises. Otherwise, the price of a pound of veal is standard. The margin of profit depends on the factors in the dealer's operation, not what the traffic will bear in wartime, which is as it would be.

Leon Henderson, formerly OPA director, made the mistake of assuming that highly complicated regulations can be enforced. He was wrong. His successor, Prentiss Brown, has taken the position that regulations that cannot be enforced are worse than no regulations at all. Mr. Brown may be wrong, too, but common sense says it will be a lot easier to keep track of an official ceiling on meat prices than it was to figure out what the butcher was entitled to get based on something in the hazily remembered past.

The Missing Baby

BIT BY BIT, as the air clears, the sad consequences of the bitter fighting over the Ruml plan are being catalogued. For instance, the collection of income taxes at the source.

In the rush of the Democrats to prove that the Republicans couldn't show them anything, the withholding tax was the baby thrown out with the bath. The Democrats had nothing against the theory that it is better to levy on income at the source than to wait a year before collecting what is owed. It was in their own ways and means committee bill as well as the Carlson bill, which embodied the Ruml plan.

Nevertheless, they became so interested in making a party fight out of what should have been considered a non-partisan tax reform that they destroyed everything in sight, including income tax collection at the source. And now, having outwitted themselves on that score, they are beginning to talk about imposing a national sales tax. If the Republicans dare to suggest any improvements, though, the Democrats may become so eager to prove they are running to show that they will vote against their leader on that proposal, too.

Secret Weapon

CONGRESS does not have time to waste on proposals that aren't supposed to be taken seriously. The anti-sabotage bill which the house has passed and sent to the senate seems to be examined in every detail for signs of lack of horsemanship.

Sabotage has not been an important war problem, thanks to the foresight and vigilance of the federal bureau of investigation. There is no evident reason for suddenly substituting the death penalty and spreading new traps to catch offenders.

Until the reason for the proposed legislation is completely clear, congressmen propose to be proceeding warily. Specifically, they are trying to find out whether it is a secret weapon, conditioned to bowl over someone who isn't prepared to deal with it—not a bona fide saboteur but perhaps someone who can be brought into line by the possibility of being charged with sabotage. There is an old rule about eternal vigilance being the price of liberty; it is just as good now as it ever was.

News Behind the News

Withdrawal of Lewis Man from Labor Board Not Expected To Have Much Effect.

By PAUL MALLON

Washington—John [illegible] War Labor [illegible] for [illegible] before [illegible] labor board [illegible] Lewis [illegible] without [illegible] more than [illegible] board could [illegible] will [illegible] by a CIO [illegible]. Kennedy has not been [illegible] of the board for some months. Most of his work has been done by a CIO [illegible]. So the impression prevails here in a somewhat better position to defy the president [illegible] against anti-Lewis which [illegible] suddenly [illegible].

Help for Lewis

Labor board decisions and all the outside talk of its members and other government officials have been clearly directed lately toward resisting the Lewis attempt to break down the administration's anti-inflationary barriers including the "Little Steel" formula. The administration has been obviously disinclined to give Lewis anything.

But Lewis is getting help from respected and even antagonistic sources. The farm bloc in congress has been simultaneously campaigning in the same direction as Lewis from the opposite side of the street. Through the Bankhead and Pace bills and otherwise, it has been seeking to break down price restriction portions of the anti-inflation barrier while Lewis attacked the wage positions. To whatever degree it succeeds, it will help Lewis in his fight against the "Little Steel" formula because his sole claim is a contention that prices are already too high.

In the Middle

The Mr. Roosevelt and his mild anti-inflationary formulas are beset from two sides by forces believing that they are working against each other although actually they are furnishing water to each other's grinding wheels. In the middle, lost and unrepresented, is the average citizen on a salary who is not a member of a union and not a farmer. Campaigns such as those raging here now may force some wages higher, but not his, although they will force higher the prices he must pay for his livelihood.

The $1 he earned before the war has already been cut to 76 cents by rising prices. Anything that sends prices up or even threatens to, whether it be [illegible] for more of the [illegible] creates [illegible].

More Fuel Oil?

[illegible] hope that [illegible] ing might be [illegible] is possible of fulfillment. Next year is another year. Political wisdom requires the softening of all [illegible] hardships to as great extent as possible while the campaign is on. Certainly if Ickes expects to [illegible] the fourth time as severely as he did for the third, a lot more oil is going to be brought into critical areas.

Fuel oil rationing always occupied a different category than other rationing. This country has always had enough oil for any war and peace purposes. The problem was the supply of transportation and administration—not of supply. Food and gas restrictions do not challenge the health of the people. Fuel oil rationing did. A man may live healthfully on a diet and even improve physically. But no physician has as yet seen to contend that 60 degree temperature, and even less in offices and homes, during winter, improves the health of the average man and woman.

So while most reports are running to the contrary and predicting a harder fuel winter ahead, men freely say [illegible], I am stringing along with Ickes, for more in the expectation that ways will be found.

Ruml Plan

The Ruml plan seems destined never to be considered squarely on its merits. It is always getting into political complications.

The unexpected defeat of the proposal in the house was unexpected only until two or three days before the vote. Then it was apparent that a number of Democrats began to fear the political results of Republican leadership in this matter. On the senate side, such an administration non-conformist as Democratic Senator McKellar of Tennessee, turned against the plan, although he has been fighting the administration on other matters. Furthermore other Democrats professed to fear the political efforts of tax "forgiveness" (misnomer that it is) among labor and worker groups.

Together these factors were sufficient to cause defeat. And if it had not been defeated in the house, the stand by McKellar suggested it would face an "unexpected" situation in the senate.

View of Doctor Shortage

OWI Indicates Situation Is Serious.

THE chairman of the Ohio Medical association committee on procurement and assignment of physicians, Dr. Robert Conrad, declared last week that the shortage of physicians in this state is acute but not yet critical.

Dr. Conrad, who lives in Wilmington, said, speaking for the association, that the ratio of active physicians to population has increased from 1 to 1,000 before the outbreak of war to about 1 to 1,100. The state has exceeded its quota of physicians for the armed forces by 24 per cent, he explained.

Dr. Conrad's statement presumably was made as an observation on the office of war information's prediction of a "slow deterioration" in national health because of an acute lack of physicians in many communities. OWI's interest in the problem suggests the government may be preparing the public for some sudden move.

Approximately one-third of the country's doctors, OWI says, have joined the armed forces and more will be called as the size of the Army and Navy increases. OWI declares that doctors were recruited in many cases without sufficient regard for the welfare of the civilian population. While enough doctors are in practice to meet all needs if properly distributed, some areas have been deprived of too large a proportion of the doctors for safety.

SHORTAGE of physicians is [illegible] the result of government action. On June 8, 1942, the enlistments had failed to come up to expectations, Paul V. McNutt, speaking as federal security administrator, told the American Medical association convention that is was "absolutely necessary that there be an immediate and significant increase in the number of volunteers." He went on broadly of a vigorous plan. Listless doctors rushed to [illegible]. The result was to fill the original quota of physicians requested by the armed forces [illegible] months ahead of schedule [illegible] five months after the [illegible] had been announced. The [illegible] exactly what Mr. McNutt asked them to do—rushed to [illegible].

Naturally, the result was to [illegible] communities of doctors [illegible] rapidly expanding [illegible] construction centers where [illegible] were lost, doctors were needed. In such areas it is obvious the present shortage is in large part due to failure to specify that doctors whose services were indispensible in their own communities were not supposed to [illegible]. Mr. McNutt's ominous warning that doctors didn't volunteer [illegible] would be something [illegible] done.

The [illegible] to exhaustion and [illegible] the people of [illegible] has said [illegible] to the doctors there has been a [illegible] unnecessarily exercised [illegible] the people [illegible] ply at the expense of the civilian population."

The remedy most often proposed is relocation of civilian doctors, but doctors who have established a practice naturally are reluctant to abandon it and move to another area. Dr. Joseph W. Mountin, assistant surgeon general of United States public health service, has proposed that physicians be given federal commissions, put into uniform and assigned to communities where shortages exist. This would be however, a cumbersome procedure. It also has been suggested that doctors commissioned for military service be returned to their communities in cases of extreme need and recalled for service when they are needed.

ACTIVE mobilization of physicians for the armed forces was started in June, 1940, when the surgeon general of the Army asked American Medical association for assistance in obtaining necessary personnel. The association compiled a roster to show the location and training of every doctor in the country.

In the fall of 1941, enlarged military needs caused the association to ask for authorization to set up a central service through which personnel could be obtained more speedily. In response, President Roosevelt issued an executive order on Oct 30 1941, creating the procurement and assignment service as a subdivision of the office of the defense health and welare services.

Dr. Frank Lahey, president of the association, was appointed chairman of the new agency, which was charged with the responsibility of [illegible] equitably the available medical, dental and veterinary personnel required. The agency organized subcommittees, canvassed the physicians for further information and undertook to designate which individuals were available for military service provided they had expressed willingness to do so. The service has no authority to compel a doctor to enter the armed service to remain in his present location, or to transfer to a shortage area. Its power is derived from the fact that armed forces will not commission a doctor who has been classed as essential."

The United States has been fortunate so far in having had no important epidemic of sickness to deal with, yet in many communities the shortage of doctors has been evident even in a period of sound public health. The professor of epidemiology at University of Michigan Thomas Francis Jr., warned last month that in the winter of 1943-1944 an epidemic of influenza similar to the scourge of 1918 may be the consequences of overcrowding in busy communities believed by some authorities to have been the cause of the epidemic in World war I.

Number of doctors to be taken for military service this year is limited to approximately 10,000, according to the Journal of the American Medical association. Most of these will be taken from the 20 states with relatively favorable physician-population ratios, one of which is Ohio. Fifteen states which have contributed more than the sum of their 1942 and 1943 quotas already will not be required to furnish any physicians.

Marked reduction in the number of physicians to be taken this year, if combined with a program of relocation among civilian physicians and steps to relieve acute shortages where they spread, may be sufficient to deal with the situation that may occur. It is apparent, however, that calling some 45,000 doctors to military service—approximately a third of the doctors in the United States—has created a problem that is potentially very serious.

Enlightened Unselfishness

From Linotype

ENLIGHTENED selfishness is so vast an improvement over the other kind, that it deserves respectful recognition. But, after all, enlightenment tacked on selfishness is not a pair of spectacles that can but slightly improve hopelessly blurred and short vision. If the world wants to see any farther than just in front of its toes, it needs better vision than that. Enlightenment and selfishness can't go far together. They don't match.

"The Street Called Straight" is straight and wide, but it isn't straight enough or wide enough for those two. Yet, down that street the world must go, sooner or later, for it is the only thoroughfare that leads anywhere except to swamps or deserts. There is one chart for it and its name is Enlightened Unselfishness.

Enlightened Unselfishness doesn't imply the enthusiastic surrender of purse, watch and laundry to the other fellow. It doesn't even demand that we should turn the other cheek to an individual who has already stung us good and plenty on one. It means simply the realization that all human transactions include at least two parties and that no arrangement can be permanent or even of reasonably long endurance if it is only for the selfish interest of one side or the other.

Enlightened Unselfishness means that "putting something over" on somebody is not smart, but blind stupidity; that grabbing while the grabbing is good, is to grab two dollars' worth of hatred for every dollar of cash; that what is bad for one side to a bargain is bound in the long run to be bad for both. Enlightened Unselfishness knows that Honor is the keystone of every human relation and that magnanimity is not a luxury but a necessary part of the business of life.

South African Rice

By The Associated Press

DURBAN—South Africa is conducting extensive rice-growing experiments, mostly with American seed, in an attempt to counter the rice shortage caused by Japanese conquests in the far east.

The shortage has been severe, particularly in Natal, where rice forms the staple diet of 170,000 persons.

Small importations from Argentina and Brazil were too high priced, and a seven-acre plot on the coastal belt of Zululand was sown.

The quality of the rice is good, but large-scale production will take time.

FBI Director Hoover Deplores Crime Rate Particularly on Part of Nation's Females.

By DAMON RUNYON

ONE of the saddest features of war, I think, is its reaction against the women of the home front, particularly young girls. The demoralization of many of them is tragic. The reasons are more or less obvious. The war removes most of the barriers of convention, nearly all restraints of home and training.

In time of war, there is always an increase in crime and delinquency among women and girls—much more so than among men. The increase is apparent today. It is reflected in the most recent report on crime in the United States and its possessions by J. Edger Hoover, chief of the federal bureau of investigation, which discloses a disturbing rise in misconduct among females.

Fingerprint cards of arrested women received by the FBI during 1942 from some 318 of the largest cities of the nation increased 21.7 per cent in number over those received during 1941. Male arrests decreased in that same period 1.1 per cent. But arrests of persons less than 21 years of age, male decreases 3.6 per cent, while females' increased 65.7 per cent.

The fingerprint cards received represented females under 21 years of age arrested for prostitution increased 64.8 per cent. For other sex offenses the increase was 104.7 per cent, for vagrancy 124.3 per cent, for disorderly conduct 69.6 per cent and for drunkenness, 39.8 per cent. The Hoover bureau examined 585,985 fingerprint arrest records last year, of which 70.5 per cent or 12 per cent represented women.

THE alarming upswing in crime among women and girls points to the need for renewed efforts to keep the home front clean, wholesome and strong," remarks Mr. Hoover. "Boom conditions and 'easy money' in the hands of youthful persons, together with a possible letdown in the influence of the home are factors which must be offset in designing programs to combat the general upswinging crime curve among women and girls, and the increases in certain types of crimes committed by boys."

Oddly enough, the report shows that arrests of males under 21 for criminal homicide declined 1.3 per cent, while girls under 21 arrested for this offense increased 28.6 per cent. The number of young men less than voting age arrested for larceny decreased 11.5 per cent while girls under 21 arrested for such offenses increased 27.5 per cent.

Mr Hoover realizes that local law enforcement agencies are confronted with many additional duties in war time and that often there are sudden increases in the population of individual communities without proportionate increases in police personnel. Also he realizes that many law enforcement agencies have lost many of their most capable and experienced personnel to the armed forces.

BUT he thinks all these factors indicate the need for increasing, rather than decreasing, activities which are crime preventive in character. He believes that in every community current information concerning the extent of delinquency should be studied, together with a review of the circumstances contributing to the development of delinquency and that a vigorous counter-offensive should be started. He regards delinquency of every nature which he characterizes as "an inexcusable waste of manpower during a period of crisis."

Getting back to the ladies I am depressed by the revelation that many of them are repeaters. The arrest cards examined in Mr. Hoover's office showed 35.4 per cent of the female subjects had prior records. This was a decrease from the 1941 showing of 39.6 per cent of women with prior records, but Mr. Hoover views the decrease without optimism stating the marked increase in females under 21 arrested last year was caused by so-called first offenders.

So They Say—

The world today is full of disillusioned people who have fought hard to gain success and who have emerged from the struggle with an empty feeling. Joseph R. Sizoo of New York.

We shall achieve the largest common measure of the integrated life of Europe that is possible without destroying the individual characteristics and traditions of its many ancient and historic races.—Winston Churchill.

High school teachers are giving the best preparation for full-fledged citizenship as citizens in a democracy—10 times as important as the colleges as far as preparation for citizenship is concerned.—Prof. Maxwell H. Savelle, Stanford university.

The alarming upswing in crime among women and girls points to the need for renewed efforts to keep the home front clean, wholesome and strong.—FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover.

Our current and 1944 submarines will be more effective fighting ships because of changes which are being made as a result of actual service in battle.—Lieut. Comm. W. A. Hardy, naval inspection officer.

Where is the difference between Nazis and Germans? There ain't no such animal!—Netherlands Ambassador Alexander Loudon.

Service Flag Competition

WASHINGTON—The Battle of the "Patriotic Towns" is on.

Champion service flag at the moment is claimed by Rep. Luther A. Johnson for the village of Kosse, in his home state of Texas.

Kosse, says Mr. Johnson, has a total population of 881, but now has 250 persons in the armed services. Rev. William H. Sealy, pastor of Kosse's First Baptist church, provided Mr. Johnson with the alphabetical list, with the information that every one on it either lives in Kosse at the time of his enlistment or was for more or less temporarily away from "home."

The citizens of Kosse are proud of their record and are soon unveiling a big honor plaque with the names of all their service men inscribed thereon.

Just now Kosse managed to get nearly a tenth of its population into the armed forces is a spot I would like to hear more about. And if there is any community that has a better claim to fame for patriotism, I'd like to hear about that too.—Jack Sunnett.

Rommel Deprived of Last Strong Defense Position

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

General Montgomery's smashing new victory, as disclosed by British Prime Minister Churchill in the house of commons today, would seem to have deprived the fleeing Rommel of the last strong ... position in southern Tunisia.

Mr. Churchill is an able reporter and a grand announcer. Let's hope he doesn't lose his voice.

What has happened is that Montgomery has driven Rommel from the powerful defenses of the Wadi El Akarit, a gorge-like valley about 20 miles north of the port of Gabes. This feat was achieved by the hell-for-leather British Eighth army in hand-to-hand fighting after a terrific artillery and aerial bombardment of enemy positions.

At latest reports Rommel's heels were flashing up the coast, with Montgomery in hot pursuit. Axis prisoners were pouring into the British rear, and there could be no doubt heavy casualties were being inflicted on the fleeing forces.

Rommel Great Soldier

It seems like yesterday—and in fact it's only a few weeks ago—that I sat with Montgomery in his caravan in the Libyan desert and heard him describe Rommel as a great soldier, but one who would be beaten. Rommel is a great soldier and he has done a masterful job in alternately standing off the enemy and extricating his troops from seemingly impossible positions.

However, the Nazi marshal would seem to be getting close to the end of his rope, though we shouldn't jump to the conclusion that there won't be more fierce fighting in Tunisia. His latest defeat is a particularly grave one for him, because it puts him out in the open to run the gantlet in an effort to make a junction with his colleague, General Von Arnim, in the far north.

The Wadi El Akarit was a strong position which Rommel had prepared in advance as a second defense behind the Mareth line. However, this Wadi is about the last of such natural positions along the central coastal area of Tunisia until you get in the vicinity of the port of Sousse.

Thus while Rommel undoubtedly has prepared positions for just such a contingency, there is no indication he has any place which approaches the strength of the Wadi which he has been forced to flee. This being so, his army will be compelled to fight more or less in the open coastal plain, and to suffer a terrific bombing from massed allied warplanes. The marshal is in a very bad way.

One assumes that Rommel now will make an effort to race through to Von Arnim before one of the allied columns can cut through to the coast ahead of him and so surround him. In any event, the axis forces in Tunisia are hemmed in without hope of escape. The trap is closing in on them like a great hydraulic press.

Air power again is playing a vital part in the British advance. Rommel's forces have been subjected to a ceaseless bombardment, day and night, but the Anglo-American air navies have been destroying the transport planes which Hitler has tried to send to his hard pressed captain.

CENTRAL OHIO AREAS IN BLACKOUT TESTS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 7—Ohio's rural areas provide a "perfect target" for incendiary phosphorous cards and bombs and must be prepared to black out as swiftly and completely as metropoliton sections, State Defense Director Ralph H. Stone said today.

Stone termed the shrouding of rural sectors "a much harder job than dousing lights in the city" and said a Thursday night blackout in 19 counties was expected to provide valuable information on rural defenses against possible night air raids.

Defense corps observers have been instructed to report especially on the effectiveness of the test in farming sections, he asserted.

Some rural areas have not blacked out in the past as thoroughly and quickly as adjacent urban communities, the defense director declared, because defense officials must cover greater distances and face more complex problems in warning farmers of possible air raids.

Thousands of small phosphorous cards which ignite when dried out could be carried by a single plane and dropped into fields to destroy Ohio crops, Stone said.

"Farm areas may seem unimportant as targets for enemy bombs," he commented, "but they become significant when one considers the highways that traverse them. Lighted homes on such highways form a perfect pattern for enemy pilots and serve as guide posts to industrial areas."

Counties which will take part in the Thursday night blackout are Ashland, Auglaize, Carroll, Crawford, Fulton, Hancock, Hardin, Harrison, Holmes, Mercer, Paulding, Putnam, Richland, Stark, Tuscarawas, Van Wert, Wayne, Williams (except the city of Bryan) and Wyandot.

AFRICA

bombers, Boston attack bombers and fighters made repeated assaults on La Fauconnerie air field northwest of Sfax and other landing grounds and swept all along the front.

In another fierce foray against axis shipping in the Sicilian straits six enemy ships were sunk from a convoy and an ammunition ship blown up.

Flying Fortresses, in another battle during the bombing of a convoy off Bizerte, shot down 15 enemy fighters, the war bulletin said.

Tunis in Tunisia and Trapani in Sicily were heavily attacked by Wellingtons and medium and fighter-bombers. Bombs were seen to burst on the docks, the communique said.

Altogether 27 enemy aircraft were reported destroyed yesterday, compared with a loss of five allied machines.

79 In Two Days

This brought to 79 the two-day toll of enemy aircraft taken by allied airpower in the African theater.

Besides the seven ships accounted for out of one convoy, many other ships "of all classes" were sunk or severely damaged by the "heavy and very successful" attack at Trapani, the communique said.

Among enemy planes shot down were four Italian torpedo bombers which attempted to attack allied shipping off the Algerian coast.

(Axis communiques quickly acknowledged General Montgomery's offensive was under way again after heavy artillery bombardments.

("Fighting is in full swing," the German communique broadcast by the Berlin radio said.

(The Italian war bulletin broadcast by the Rome radio said the attack was preceded "with a violent artillery barrage and a large-scale use of tanks."

(The Italians also disclosed Messina and Ragusa as well as Trapani were bombed. Forty persons were killed and more than a hundred injured in the Trapani raid, the Italians said, and six were killed at Messina.)

The announcement Montgomery's forces were again on the move was first made in a special communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters last night.

"The Eighth army attacked the Akarit position at 4:30 a. m.," a headquarters communique announced.

Objective Captured

"The first objectives have been captured and the attack is proceeding according to plan."

Montgomery employed his artillery in a heavy bombardment of the enemy lines 20 miles north of Gabes his bayonet-wielding troops began to move across the sandy wastes, flanked by Veteran armored forces that had started Rommel running at El Alamein last October.

Montgomery had waited a week to bring up his troops and supplies after capturing Gabes, and in that time shaped a new campaign with his noted meticulousness.

Flying weather over the front was reported excellent as the drive began, giving the allies opportunity to capitalize on their aerial superiority.

Allied airmen supporting Patton's Americans in the Birmrabott pass region 10 miles east of El Guetar smashed at a heavy concentration of enemy tanks near Djerbel Berda, and dispatches from that sector said the enemy's armor withdrew without attacking.

Infantry patrols then advanced along Gumtree road toward Babes, contacting the enemy at only one point, Associated Press correspondent Harold V. Boyle said. The American forces also used 155 mm. guns to silence nine enemy batteries in the Djebel Berda area, he said. Three heavy German howitzers were destroyed with direct hits at 16,000 yards—more than nine miles.

Montgomery, who usually sends his men into battle with the admonition "good hunting," has said Tunis is his objective. If he forces Rommel into Sfax, the desert fox will have his back to a wide plain, and will face the prospect of a 72-mile retreat north to Sousse without the benefit of any natural defense barriers to slow Montgomery's tanks, and with no protection from aerial onslaughts.

Churchill Reports Victory to Commons

By The Associated Press

LONDON, April 7—Prime Minister Churchill announced in the house of commons today the British Eighth Army had achieved "a new victory" in an attack on the axis positions at Wadi El Akarit in Tunisia and that Field Marshal Rommel now was retreating northward with General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's troops in hot pursuit.

More than 6,000 enemy prisoners have been taken so far, the prime minister declared.

Churchill added that the success soon should "enable the Eighth Army to join hands with the United States forces which have been pressing the enemy unceasingly from the west."

The British advance was preceded and covered by a barrage of about 500 guns—a bombardment which resembled the one that touched off the Eighth Army offensive at El Alamein, Churchill declared.

All key positions along the Akarit line were taken in seven and one-half hours after the attack was launched at 4:30 a. m., he added.

Commons cheered loudly when the prime minister declared:

"I have reports from the high command in Tunisia that a new victory has been gained by the desert Army."

Asked by Capt. Frederick John Bellenger, Labor member whether the reports indicated that the desert Army was engaged with the enemy's main forces or merely with rear guards, Churchill replied:

"My statement covers the whole position. The enemy retreat did not begin until the assault was successful."

WAAC Denies Admission to Cincinnati Slayer

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, April 7—Capt. T. J. Childress, enrolling officer for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps said today the organization would deny admission to Mrs. Pearl Leonard, one of two women exonerated in the Victor Capreol slaying last January.

Captain Childress said Mrs. Leonard, who was sworn into the WAAC last Thursday, was ineligible for final acceptance because of a falsification in her record. He said she had answered negatively when asked whether she ever had been arrested.

Mrs. Leonard fatally shot Capreol Jan. 29 as he lay in a hospital bed recovering from gunshot wounds inflicted by his wife the day before. Both women were freed by a grand jury after relating a story of Capreol's brutality.

BOY ADMITS FATAL ATTACK ON CHILD

Girl's Partly-Nude Body Found in Basement.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, April 7—Police Lieut. Michael Daugherty quoted a 17-year-old youth as saying today he choked, raped and buried in the cellar of his home a four-year-old neighbor girl whom he had enticed as a baby.

Daugherty said Earl Perry lured Theresa Williams, blond and curly-haired, into the cellar with a penny "to buy candy" with yesterday afternoon.

The lieutenant said the youth told him:

"I fell down the cellar steps. She laughed and I became mad and choked her."

Perry subsequently trampled down the loose earth on her shallow grave and went to visit a girl friend, buying a bouquet of flowers for her enroute, the lieutenant said. He announced the youth was charged with murder and an autopsy would be held to determine, among other things, whether the child was dead when buried.

The body was dug up by the fathers of Perry and the missing Theresa early today when a sister of the youth told him she had seen him slugging to the cellar, Daugherty added. Williams, a mail truck driver, collapsed at the sight of her, stretched, nude from the waist down, and her clothing torn.

The lieutenant quoted Mrs. Adolph Williams, the mother, as saying between sobs:

"I can't understand it. When she was a baby, he (Earl) pushed her baby carriage and carried her in his arms. He even put her to sleep for me many times.

"I was good to him. I allowed him to walk in and out of my house like a son."

The child disappeared yesterday afternoon while playing in the street with her three-year-old brother, Tony, and Patsy Spencer, 4.

Best U. S. Horses in Marion Races

Entries Pour In for Stake Events Listed on June 10-26 Program.

The ban on pleasure driving in the east is working to advantage for Marion's 1943 harness racing program, stake event entries streaming into the office of F. M. Foster, secretary of the Marion Trotting association, indicate.

A galaxy of "big league" trotters and pacers normally seen only on the Grand Circuit or at the larger eastern ovals have been nominated to race in one or another of the 11 stake events featuring the 15-day session planned for Marion, June 10-26. Foremost among the famous outburners is Little Pat from the Biery Farm at Butler, Pa. Boasting a record of 2:03⅘ for a half-mile track, Little Pat has been entered in the free-for-all pace.

Deadline for filing entries in the stake programs was Saturday, but Secretary Foster said the complete entry list would not be available until later in the week. He explained congested mail would delay arrival of entries from distant points for a couple of days.

Already nearly 150 horses have been named for the early-closing events. On the basis of this figure upward of 300 trotters and pacers may be expected for the meeting, which will inaugurate the Ohio harness season.

Expected to contribute largely to the success of the Marion meeting is the fact that the nation's richest 1943 meeting, the spring affair at North Randall near Cleveland, follows the local session. Virtually all of the top-notch stables will be represented in the Cleveland races and a majority of them will open the season by competing at the fairground track here.

STEVE PHILLIPS NAMED STARTER

Secretary Foster announced today the appointment of Steve Phillips as starting judge for the Marion meeting. Mr. Phillips has officiated at a number of local race programs including the last two Little Grand Circuit sessions. He is one of the nation's leading starters, having worked the Grand Circuit for a dozen or more years.

At the time of the Marion meeting a year ago this spring, Mr. Phillips operated a restaurant and bowling alley in Xenia, O., but since has sold it and purchased a similar establishment in Erie, Pa.

Also selected to work the local meeting is Joseph McGraw of Washington, Pa., another Grand Circuit official, and Harvey Hartman, who has started the last four Marion county fair harness programs. He also was assistant presiding judge at the 1942 Little Grand Circuit program here.

LEADING 1942 DRIVER TO COMPETE HERE

Harry Fitzpatrick of Charleston, Ill., leading harness race driver in 1941, will make a serious bid for driving honor here, a check of the early entries disclosed. Fitzpatrick, operator of a public stable, has named a string of 12 horses in the 11 stake programs.

MANY STABLES TO TRAIN HERE

A large number of trainers and drivers are expected to bring horses to the local layout as early as May 1 to begin training for the late spring and summer track season in Ohio. While a score or more of stables already have indicated they'll work out at North Randall others will mushroom out over Ohio, Secretary Foster predicted.

TICKET SALE BY HOSPITAL BOARD

Tickets for the 15-day program will be placed on sale for several weeks. The tickets will sell for $7.50 for the entire season or $1 for each program. The Woman's Board of the Marion City hospital will be in charge of the advanced sale for a while.

Reds Lose First Game; Play Indianapolis Today

By The Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., April 7—The Cincinnati Reds endeavored to return to the victory column at the expense of their training camp "Buddies," the Indianapolis Indians, today following infliction of the initial spring training defeat yesterday by the Chicago Cubs at French Lick.

Johnny Vander Meer, former Indianapolis twirler, is expected to make his belated 1943 debut, scheduled for the first five innings and followed by Fireman Joe Beggs for the remaining four rounds.

Bob Malloy, rookie hurler, made a favorable impression with Manager Bill McKechnie in the Cub game yesterday, giving evidence of enough ability to possibly remain with the Rhinelanders throughout the season.

State AAU Tournament Gets Under Way; Union County Man Listed.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 7—Ohio fighters battle for eight crowns tonight in the state Amateur Athletic Union boxing tournament.

Four contestants slugged their way into the championship rounds last night. Other finalists will be selected in bouts tonight.

Cleveland Rams Quit Play for Duration

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 7—The National Football league's 1943 schedule, due for consideration by owners and coaches today or tomorrow, has been thrown into the wastebasket by Cleveland's withdrawal "for the duration," but the magnates nonetheless were pleased that only one team dropped out when the opportunity was offered.

The Rams' decision, said their coach, Charles (Chili) Walsh, was motivated "100 per cent" by the fact their co-owners, Major Fred Levy and Lieut. Dan Reeves, are in the service and unable to watch their interests as closely as they deemed necessary.

Public Favors Continuing Professional Ball in War

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., April 7—Whenever baseball authorities are asked whether professional baseball will continue for the duration of the war, they usually say, "It's up to the public."

To determine how the public feels about baseball in wartime, the Institute has taken the issue to the country in a survey throughout the 48 states. America's most popular sport is scheduled to get under way in baseball parks all over the country in about two weeks.

The public's verdict on baseball in wartime will cheer the hearts of ball club managers and players everywhere. A large majority of Americans questioned on the subject think that the professional teams should go on playing for the duration.

"Good morale builder....Good emotional release....Keep the ball flying....America wouldn't be the same without baseball....We have to have recreation, and baseball is good clean sport....Good recreation for war workers....Good escape value." These are typical comments reflecting the opinion of the majority.

The Question

The Institute asked the public: "Do you think that professional baseball should be continued during the war, or should it be stopped until after the war?"

The result is as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Should be continued | 59% |
| Should be stopped | 28% |
| Undecided | 13% |

Among people who follow professional baseball regularly, sentiment for keeping the game is overwhelming—about 4 to 1, the survey finds.

Just before the opening of the baseball season last year, President Roosevelt went on record as opposing suggestions that professional sports be discontinued until after the war. He wrote to baseball's dean, Kenesaw Mountain Landis, saying: "I honestly feel that it would be best for the country to keep baseball going."

Baseball has always ranked as the nation's most popular sport. Institute studies in previous years have shown that sport followers prefer it above all other games to watch. Football runs second, basketball third.

Other Sports

Most Americans think professional sports of all kinds, in addition to baseball, should be kept going during the war. In conjunction with today's survey on baseball, the Institute also asked people whether they thought all professional sports should be continued.

The vote was 64 per cent in favor, 25 per cent opposed, with the rest undecided. These figures represent only a slight decline in the favorable vote since a similar survey a year ago, when 66 per cent voted in favor of continuing all professional sports for the duration.

Where sports are concerned the American attitude is somewhat different from that prevailing in a number of other countries at war. People in the United States are much more enthusiastic about continuing sports in wartime than are people in either Canada or Australia, for example.

A survey in Canada some months ago found that only 50 per cent wanted professional sports to continue. A similar study in Australia revealed that 45 per cent favored continuing such sports in wartime, while 46 per cent were opposed and the rest undecided.

ASSOCIATION GETS ARBITER

COLUMBUS, O., April 7—George M. Trautman, president of the American Association, today announced the acquisition of Umpire Raymond W. Snyder of Hollywood, Calif., from the Pacific Coast league. Snyder, aged 44, has not missed a game to which he was assigned in 16 straight seasons, Trautman said. He formerly "called 'em" in the Association from 1929 to 1933.

HEADS COUNTRY CLUB

MARYSVILLE, April 7—Jack Henry, Marysville editor, was elected president of the Marysville Golf club at the annual meeting of members Monday night. Charles Asman was elected vice president and Milton Rausch, secretary-treasurer.

BUCYRUS TRAP SHOOT

BUCYRUS, April 7—Bucyrus Gun club grounds are being prepared for the opening shoot of the season, tentatively set for April 18 when the maple syrup shoot will be staged. An annual event, the syrup shoot is expected to attract approximately 150 trap shooters from all sections of Ohio.

INDIANS STILL SEEK VICTORY OVER BUCS

Three Rookies Elected To Hurl Today.

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 7—Manager Lou Boudreau named three rookies to hurl for the Cleveland Indians today in the third and final game of the exhibition series with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Jack Salveson, Pete Center and Mike Naymick were assigned the task of preventing the Pirates from making a clean sweep of the series.

The bright spots in the 5 to 3 loss to Pittsburgh yesterday were the pitching of Mel Harder and the fact the Indians collected 11 hits against two of the National leaguers' better moundsmen.

Harder allowed only one Pirate to reach base in the three innings he worked. After retiring the first nine he faced, the veteran threw a single to his rival Truett (Rip) Sewell, and then got Frankie Gustine to end his tour of duty.

Chubby Dean, who followed him, was less successful. In his three innings on the mound the Pittsburghers hit two triples, a double and a single and took full advantage of four bases on balls and an error by first baseman Otto Denning to score four runs.

Al Smith was touched for three hits in the last three rounds, but the only run he yielded was made without a hit in the ninth.

The Indians outhit the Pirates by 11 hits to eight, but they also committed two damaging errors, and the two unearned runs handed the enemy by Otto Denning and Buddy Rosar represented the margin of victory.

Evades Newsom, Harris Happy

By The Associated Press

HERSHEY, Pa., April 7 — This probably sounds like a guy cheering the arrival of his mother-in-law, but Stanley R. Harris is getting "a terrific kick" out of managing the Phillies.

It could be Bucky's thrill comes from the knowledge he definitely has escaped from Bobo Newsom, because at his request, Bill Cox, the Phils' new owner, turned thumbs down when Branch Rickey wanted to trade him the "Big Wind" from Hartsville, S. C. Bucky admits that when Bobo could pitch, there was at least a reason to put up with him, "but now that he can't pitch much any more, well—"

Or it could be the bang Bucky gets comes from getting away from the Washington Senators, which could hardly be called a manager's Garden of Eden, with or without apple trees. Yet, jumping from the Nats to the Phillies would appear to be something like making a choice between wearing tight shoes or just having your toes pinched with a pair of pliers.

"Don't kid yourself," Bucky replies to this. "Nothing much has changed down at Washington this spring. It's still the same old thing—which is no situation to start waving the flags about.

"That's the reason I'm getting such a bang out of this new job here. This is strictly a new ball show. I have a chance to build a ball club from the ground up under Mr. Cox, who is a hustling young executive. I'm having pretty much my way in how to put the team together and in tabbing players I'd like to have in trade."

Bucky won't make any predictions, but at least he has a collection of ball players with more get-up-and-go than the Phil's have shown in a long piece. That, alone, ought to boost them a little over their 42-games-won record of last year.

Insurance—Every kind—Surety Bonds. Costs are low. Safety and satisfaction. See us for War Damage Cover. "Don't make it too little or too late."

Harding Gymnasts Score Hit As They Near End of First Year of Activity at High School

Harding High school's tumbling team is nearly finished with the first year that such an activity has had a place at the school.

The tumbling idea started by the high school physical education instructor and football coach, Vic Dorris, around December 1. For the first two six weeks' period of the school year, the boys' gym classes stressed tumbling and other gymnastics.

So great was the interest of most of the boys in tumbling that Dorris organized the team. During its regular season, the tumbling squad carries an average of 16 boys. These boys are considered the pick of the gymnasts in the 8 physical ed classes.

Perform at Games

The main performances of the team were given between halves of Harding's home basketball contests at Thomas A. Edison Junior High school. Prior to this year, Marion cage fans had no entertainment during the intermission and this season they showed their approval of the tumbling act.

Before the first basketball game, the mat boys had less than a week to practice on their stunts. However, they shaped up a program for the curtain-raiser that really pleased the fans. After that game, the word of the tumbling squad's appearance was passed around and increased attendance at the remaining games was the result.

The Harding games were not the only places where the boys performed. They did their stuff at one junior high school basketball game at Vernon Heights. Also, they traveled to Galion on [illegible] and took part in a physical [illegible] show. According to Coach Dorris the Galion fans were very excited. The Marion gymnasts, so pleasing were impressed by the wide variety of [illegible] displayed by the Galion [illegible].

Keeping in Shape

The tumbling team's year is not [illegible] yet, however. The boys [illegible] keeping in shape and practicing their forward rolls and the like every Tuesday and Thursday in the school gymnasium. They are scheduled to play an important part in a gigantic physical education demonstration to be staged under the lights at the Harding stadium some time in May. This show is being directed by Dorris with the cooperation of Miss Florence Conkle, Harding High's girls' instructor. Marion people will be shown a bird's eye view of a physical program in a typical American High school in World War II period.

The main purpose for [illegible] the tumbling team was, first, to interest the Harding boys in tumbling. Second, Coach Dorris wanted to give the Marion people an idea of the importance of tumbling to a high school youngster. Third, the team would give outsiders a conception of what was being done to build up the bodies of Harding pupils in wartime.

Tumbling is considered by the Army and Navy an important phase in the physical development of a recruit. Especially in the flying branch of the service do tumbling and other mat work help the individual. It develops coordination and timing which are important to any flying serviceman. Many of the somersaults and rolls done in tumbling correspond almost exactly to the turns and antics performed by a fighter or pursuit pilot.

Co-Captains of Squad

Tudy McGinnis and Bob Taylor, both high school juniors, are co-captains of the squad. Other members are Jim Bowers, Lawrence Daly, Virgil Hollis, Bob Kepler, Charles Lust (comedian), Vern Orth, Lowell Ralston, Eugene Van Voornis, Tom Welsh, Merle Jackson, George Roese (comedian), Max Anderson, Dick Grimm and George Whysall. Three junior high school boys served as team mascots: Douglas Elkins, Paul Anderson and Robert Dickason.

Among some of the stunts performed by the team are: forward roll, backward high roll, hand spring with man on the mat, head spring, dives over five men on the mat, hand spring, somersault, various pyramids, and group balancing. Also boxing, wrestling, tug-of-war, and military marching were added attractions on the team's repertoire.

That Extra Something!

...You can spot it every time

THE Civil Air Patrol has recruited more than a third of the nation's 100,000 civilian pilots to fly for national defense. Coming from every walk of life, they are putting forth an extra something to do their trained part. To them and to you, in its own way, ice-cold Coca-Cola offers something extra, too. More than just quenching thirst it brings refreshment... refreshment that goes into energy.

Made with a finished art and with a taste all its own, Coca-Cola has quality that sets it apart. Here is something in refreshment that was, and still is, original. Coca-Cola offers all the difference between something really refreshing and just something to drink. There's no comparison.

* * *

Wartime limits the supply of Coca-Cola. Those times when you cannot get it, remember: Coke, being first choice, sells out first. Ask for it each time.

Even on the ground, pilots know that your thirst takes wings when you drink ice-cold Coca-Cola. Refreshment comes to take its place.

British Vice Consul Speaks Here; Emphasizes Vital Value of Unity

Cautions Against Misunderstandings That Present Danger of Division.

E. J. BISIKER

Warning against giving ear to ... that may tend to stir up division among the nations allied in the war against the axis was voiced by a representative of the British government in a talk to a Marion audience, Tuesday.

The speaker was E. J. Bisiker, London business man now serving as British vice consul at Cleveland, and his talk was given in the weekly luncheon meeting of the Marion Rotary club at Hotel Harding.

Some of the reports likely to hamper the allied war effort are the result of misunderstandings of no evil origin and others emanate from enemy propaganda sources, but all are helpful to the forces against which we are fighting, Mr. Bisiker said.

He voiced hope that the unity which now exists among the allied nations will be maintained after the war in order that the fruits of victory may be permanently held.

Must Work Together

"There must be a willingness to work with the other fellow, to give and take so that the victory achieved by our boys at the front will not be in vain," he said. "If we drift apart God help us."

Drawing from classic phrases of Wordsworth, he concluded his talk with the admonition: "Let us make ourselves deserving to be called the 'noble living,' worthy of being classified with the 'noble dead.'"

Reviewing the story of devastation wrought in England by the enemy and the rise of the British people from that wreckage to start the fight for eventual victory, Mr. Bisiker said they are not concerned over the tremendous destruction of property and other material possessions. "We know that physical assets will be worth nothing if we don't win the war," he told his audience.

He spoke of the friendly association of the British people with American soldiers and said this bond will become greater still as the war progresses and conflict is shared by forces of the two nations. "Friendship is developed to the greatest degree under fire," he said.

Lend-Lease Situation

He told of operations of lend-lease and made it clear that this is by no means one-sided. He presented figures showing that Britain is sending vast supplies of munitions, weapons and other essentials of war to the various allied nations.

"Now the war materials production of British industry is the highest per capita of all the Allied nations. But your country with its vast resources and industrial genius will pass us—and we hope that will be soon. This is not a competitive effort but one of cooperation."

He praised the women of England for their tremendous contribution to the Allied cause. "The number of women you see in uniform in England is simply terrific," he said.

Mr. Bisiker spoke assuringly of the situation in India and voiced confidence that the British experts there are best qualified to decide what should be done. He called attention to the fact that the men there are civil service officials giving their entire lives to the study and handling of the problems there.

"If Britain should pull out the Indian army would be disbanded, because Mr. Gandhi would favor only passive resistance to the Japanese," the vice consul told his audience.

Vice Consul Bisiker was born in London in 1897 and lived in both England and Scotland. He is a veteran of World War I and following his service in that conflict entered upon a business career which culminated in his founding of the firm of British Metal Powders, Ltd., manufacturer of aluminum and other metal products. In 1940 he responded to a request of Cyril H. Cane, British consul in Detroit, to act as his deputy for the state of Ohio and in December, 1940 took up his residence in Cleveland.

WAR PHOTOGRAPHER SUSPENDED BY AP

Incorrectly Labelled Pictures Violated Accuracy Rule.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON April 7 — The war department said last night it had been informed that five recent North African war area photographs were misleading in their captions" and that The Associated Press has suspended the photographer responsible on the grounds that he violated the AP's "elementals of accurate news-photo reporting."

The statement issued by the war department bureau of public relations follows:

"The war department states it has been informed by General Eisenhower that a recent series of photographs taken by an Associated Press photographer, representing the wartime still photographic pool, were misleading in their captions as provided by the photographer.

"Referring to the principal picture in the series, which was issued 'Somewhere on the Tunisian Front,' while medical corps men attended a wounded man in the foreground, General Eisenhower advised it was taken not under hostile bombardment but in a training area.

"Investigation of this picture and four others in the same series was undertaken both by the war department bureau of public relations, and The Associated Press.

"The Associated Press had advised the war department its investigation, which is still continuing, resulted in a statement directly from the photographer, advising the scene represented a re-enactment, by use of land mines, of conditions he had seen at the front but had not been in position to photograph, and advising further that he had failed to qualify the caption as a reenactment or training scene.

"The Associated Press further stated that because the procedure represented such violation of its elementals of accurate newsphoto reporting, on which the same fundamentals always have applied as in news reporting, it had placed the photographer under suspension and asked the war department to terminate his accreditation as a war correspondent.

"The pictures were cleared through regular channels, first for security by a field censor in North Africa, and were dispatched to the war department bureau of public relations, which on March 29 turned them over to The Associated Press and the other members of the still picture pool—Acme News Pictures, International News Photos, and Life Magazine.

"The four other pictures purported to show bombs falling about the patrol as it crossed a stream; two wounded men being loaded atop an amphibious jeep; one of the wounded men being carried into a truck hospital, and a medical officer and aide treating a wounded man."

Churchill in Accord on DeGaulle Trip Delay

By The Associated Press

LONDON, April 7 — Prime Minister Churchill said in the house of commons today he was in full accord with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in the latter's request to Gen. Charles De Gaulle to delay his proposed trip to North Africa.

The Fighting French leader delayed his trip for conferences with Gen. Henri Giraud, high commissioner in French and North and west Africa, at Eisenhower's request.

Gen. Charles Catroux, liaison officer between De Gaulle and Giraud, already is in North Africa, and De Gaulle had been expected to follow early this week.

It was generally believed the active military situation, with American and British armies in pusuit of axis Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces in Tunisia, had made it difficult for the allied commander-in-chief to devote time to political discussions.

Seven Inspector Jobs To Be Filled in Marion

Employment Service office at State and Center streets Friday morning to interview applicants for the position of associate inspector of mechanical engineering material. Seven such positions are to be filled under civil service, and the workers chosen will be located in Marion. They are required to have experience in the use of precision instruments such as gauges and micrometers, and men with two or more years of experience are preferred.

Applicants have been asked to report at the employment office between 9 a. m. and noon Friday and ask for Mr. Nelson. Men employed in war work are urged not to apply.

STOCK RETREAT LED BY RAILS

Declines of Around a Point Develop as Profit Sales Continue.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 7—Profit selling dominated today's stock market and industrial and rail leaders suffered a gain of interest with losses running fore fractions to more than a point.

Volume of offerings was unmentioned, brokers said, but the amount of short selling prompted by ideas the recent fast advance warranted a corrective reaction of perhaps substantial proportions. Rails were particularly soft.

Bonds were steady and commodities mixed.

Stocks in lower territory included N. Y. Central, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Glenn Martin, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, General Electric and U. S. Rubber.

There was more lively churning in low priced issues.

Wall Street's first reaction to the Treasury's postwar currency stabilization proposals was that they were "orthodox" in character and unlikely to unsettle security markets if finally adopted along the lines suggested.

EARLY GRAIN LOSSES PARTLY CANCELLED

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 7—An easy undertone prevailed in grains today, although earlier losses in most pits were partly cancelled before the close. Further selling on indications that the Bankhead bill would not be passed by the senate over the President's veto depressed prices.

A feature of the trade was a decline in September corn contracts to $1.04¼ shortly after the opening. A later rally sent the price back to $1.05, the ceiling, and considerable trading took place at and slightly under that level.

CBS Revising Its Late Dance Music Schedule

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 7—Realignment by CBS of its late dance schedule is to be more extensive than the network first announced. The plan now is to replace the orchestras Monday through Fridays, up to 12:30 a. m. instead of stopping at midnight.

The revised schedule is being put into effect progressively, each week to bring some of the changes. Only Saturday and Sunday nights will remain solid dance tunes as heretofore. Other nights from 11:15 to 12 New York will supply the programs, while the 12:05 to 12:30 period will come from affiliated stations. The five-minute news spot at midnight continues.

litical circles over a new Army regulation barring any soldier on active duty from seeking—or even accepting—election to a public office unless he held the post when he went into active service.

The war department contended it was issued to stress for the duration a long-time policy to keep the Army out of politics, but Rep. Ditter (R-Pa) called it a "very far-reaching and arbitrary exercise of discretionary power," and asked if it was intended to "bar the patriots" from public office.

One Democratic senator termed "a lot of rot" rumors that it was aimed at preventing a possible presidential nomination for Gen. Douglas MacArthur. President Roosevelt told a press conference questioner he never heard of it, and asked against whom was it aimed.

"That's what we'd like to know," the reporter replied.

Another legislative battle appeared to be shaping up as a house appropriations subcommittee prepared to begin hearings tomorrow or Friday on the omnibus f

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

KATHERINE sat up promptly, rubbed the eyes, stretched and stepped out of bed, then threw up her hand in a snappy salute.

"Ready for duty!" she said. "That is, I shall be when I've had a shower. You've had yours, I see."

"Yes. What do you want for breakfast?" I telephone our order before I dress.

A few minutes later we were discussing our breakfasts, and the task before us. I told her of what had been planned, the telephone sounded and my future spoke.

"Margaret! Don't be alarmed, dear! I really am all right, but I've had a slight attack, and Dr. Twitchell is on his way over. There really isn't the least need of your coming—"

"Father!" I interrupted him, hoping I had made my voice frantic enough to be convincing to the operator, "Go back to bed immediately. I will be right over."

"I'll just slip into my uniform," said Katherine, who already was taking off her gown. "Then I'll follow you right over, and stay there with Dr. Twitchell until I get the call from you at Mary's apartment. Better arrange to have Adams, or somebody, ready to take care of your father while Dr. Twitchell and I are busy with Mary."

Everything Ready

"I'll do that," I said, and went at once to my father's apartment.

When Adams opened the door, I warned that my father already had attacked for all unchivalrous acts.

"Your father said you were to come directly to him, Mr. Graham," Adams said, with no hint that he was acting a role. From the bedroom I found my father on his dressing gown lying on the bed.

"Katherine will be here in a few minutes," I told him.

Instead of saying as I expected, one of his mouth quirked into a smile. "I really think I shall go out to Hollywood after this performance. Is everything in order?"

"We are all ready," I said. "Katherine has on her uniform, so no time will be lost."

"And that must be Dr. Twitchell," he said as the knocker sounded. Adams ushered in the physician and I went to the telephone.

"We might as well make this convincing to the operator," I said, then called my own room.

Dr. Twichell Arrives

"The doctor is here," I said hastily, when she reported no answer, "and Mrs. Bickett, who is a nurse, said she would be right over."

"She probably is on her way, Mrs. Graham," the operator said soothingly. Thus I had established Katharine's status as a nurse and prepared the operator for the telephone call I would make a few minutes later from Mary's apartment.

I had hardly hung up the receiver before Katharine arrived. We sat trying to chat idly, until time for me to start for Mary's apartment, then I turned at the door, speaking loudly for the benefit of the chambermaid in the hall.

"You're sure it is all right for me to go?" I asked anxiously. "My appointment is very important."

"Absolutely sure," Dr. Twitchell assure me, also speaking loudly. "This is only a slight attack, and he is getting better by the minute."

"I'm so glad," I said fervently, and hurried away.

At Mary's apartment I met Noel at the door. He was wheeling the breakfast table into the hall, so it could be picked up there without disturbing them.

Noel Playing His Part

"We're taking all precautions, you see," Mary said smiling. Noel smiled too with patent effort. But at least he was playing up, I noted with satisfaction.

"If you'll just lie down on that couch, Mary," I said, "I'll telephone Dr. Twitchell. He's at Father's apartment with Aunt Katherine and Adams, caring for your Grandpa Spencer, who is supposedly having a heart attack."

Mary giggled as she established herself on the couch.

"I'd love to see him acting all over the lot," she commented as I took down the receiver and was connected with my father's apartment. Adams answered the telephone, and again I tried to make my voice convincingly frantic.

"Will you ask Dr. Twitchell if he can come directly to Mr. Noel Graham's apartment?" I urged. "There has been an accident."

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Millions of incendiary Bombs of many and varied sizes are essential for this modern warfare. These implements of destruction not only have a devastating effect of their own, but the flares light the targets for our bombardiers as night falls. "Huge fires could be seen for 75 miles" read the news dispatches following a raid.

Your purchases of War Bonds provide the money to buy incendiary Bombs, and will help shorten the war. The more implements we give our army, the quicker will they do the job. Buy more War Bonds every payday. "You've Done Your Bit, Now Do Your Best."

MARION CO. COUPLE HEAR FROM DAUGHTER IN CHINA

Belated Christmas Greetings First Word Since Last August.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Setter of the Richland Road this week received Christmas greetings from their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Weiss, medical missionaries in China. Aside from a cablegram received in August advising them of the birth of a daughter, Betty Ann, in June last year, the card is the first word Mr. and Mrs. Setter have received from their daughter since before Pearl Harbor.

The card stated they were safe and well in Shanghai, China. After war was declared Dr. and Mrs. Weiss left Nanchang where Dr. Weiss was head surgeon in a hospital, and went with other Americans to Shanghai. They have been living in China about four years. At present they seem quite comfortable, Mrs. Setter said. They are studying the Chinese language.

Mrs. Weiss before her marriage was Miss Hilda Setter. She is a graduate nurse, receiving her degree at the University of Cincinnati.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Necessity of Sleep

I have always been inclined to believe that people who complain of insomnia have not checked up on themselves very well. They sleep more than they think they do. The ones who say "I have not slept a wink for months" are simply stating something that is not within the bounds of possibility.

The necessity for sleep is so fundamental for human beings that no one can possibly go long without it. I have recently added to my library a little book published in 1898, written by Dr. William A. Hammond, a distinguished neurologist of a former generation. It is called "On Wakefulness," and he tells the following story which is apropos of these remarks:

Lasted Nineteen Days

"A Chinese merchant had been convicted of murdering his wife, and was sentenced to die by being deprived of sleep. This painful mode of death was carried into effect under the following circumstances: The condemned was placed in prison under the care of three of the police guard, who relieved each other every alternate hour, and who prevented the prisoner falling asleep night or day. He thus lived nineteen days without enjoying any sleep. At the commencement of the eighth day his sufferings were so intense that he implored the authorities to grant him the blessed opportunity of being strangled, guillotined, burned to death, drowned, garrotted, shot, quartered, blown up with gunpowder, or put to death in any conceivable way their humanity or ferocity could invent. This will give a slight idea of the horrors or death from want of sleep."

Not much has been discovered about either sleep or wakefulness or their treatment since this little book was published. Theories as to the causation of sleep can be divided into attempts to explain it (1) by the accumulation in the blood of poisons from muscular action and the activity of the day, (2) nerve-tire, or pushing a good horse, if not too far, to its limit, (3) changes in the caliber of the blood vessels inside the skull.

None of these is satisfactory. The fact that it comes on at night when the world is dark, when there is nothing for you to do that is profitable except to become semi-conscious, indicates that it is one of the most fundamental and cyclic rhythms of the body.

All animals and probably all plants sleep. It just has to be done; that is my explanation. The soldiers at Dunkerque slept while marching in their retreat, dead asleep on their feet while moving.

As to the treatment of insomnia, the worst thing anyone can do is to start the regular and habitual use of sedative drugs. You may be sure that any night, if you will lie down and shut your eyes and compose yourself, in the course of time enough sleep will come to you to refresh you, everyone gets all the sleep he deserves.

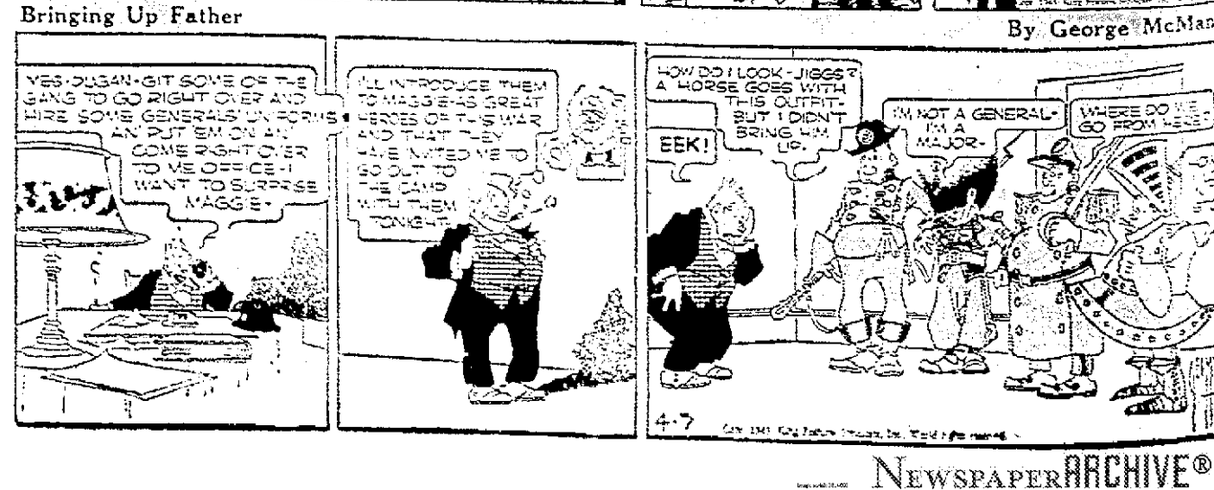
By George McManus



YES-DUGAN-GIT SOME OF THE GANG TO GO RIGHT OVER AND HIRE SOME GENERALS' UNIFORMS AN' PUT 'EM ON AN' COME RIGHT OVER TO ME OFFICE-I WANT TO SURPRISE MAGGIE-
I'LL INTRODUCE THEM TO MAGGIE AS GREAT HEROES OF THIS WAR AND THAT THEY HAVE INVITED ME TO GO OUT TO THE CAMP WITH THEM TONIGHT-
HOW DO I LOOK - JIGGS? A HORSE GOES WITH THIS OUTFIT- BUT I DIDN'T BRING HIM UP.
EEK!
I'M NOT A GENERAL- I'M A MAJOR-
